

Our Teleconference Hardware

Would owning your Teleconferencing Hardware be right for you?

Audio Conference Bridges

Larger companies or organizations with strict security protocols may find it beneficial to own their own teleconference bridge rather than using the bridge of a service provider.

Compunetix, the sister company of Chorus Call, is a global leader in the design and manufacturing of high end teleconference bridges.

Your conferencing bridge could be installed at your facility or in a purpose-built environment managed by Chorus Call. Bridge management and operator training is available. Alternatively, Chorus Call can provide these services on a contract basis.

Should your organization wish to explore the option to purchase your own bridge, we offer a variety of sizes and options, and service plans.
